Welcome to Las Huacas Hill: A Sacred Sanctuary Las Huacas, which translates to 'Sacred' in the indigenous language, has a rich history of revered treasures and artifacts. Decades ago, early settlers discovered ancient hand-painted clay pots, gold, and emeralds buried beneath this sacred land. In the 1970s, environmentally conscious individuals began to settle in Nosara, reforesting and designating much of the land as a natural reserve. Today, most homes in the area are embraced by natural beauty, with lush forests, wildlife, and serene creeks. A View Like No Other Experience breathtaking sunsets over the Pacific Ocean from Las Huacas Hill.
